Subject: EPA's website for John Day Vapor Response is up

Partners,

EPA's website for the John Day Vapor Response is up and running. We will be updating this site with pictures and information as it becomes available. While some sensitive materials, such as photos of individual homes, will be set up to be restricted for viewing to just EPA and local officials, the website itself is meant to be shared freely with the public. Please share the link as you see fit.

Please contact Richard Franklin, Judy Smith, or me if you have questions.
